In November's chill, the leaves drift down,
In colors of amber, red, and brown.
We bundle up warm, as the breezes blow,
Through fields and trees where pumpkins grow.

Bonfire sparks light up the sky,
Fireworks bloom and whistles fly!
We wear a poppy, red and bright,
Remembering heroes with hearts of light.

November days are crisp and clear,
With stories, songs, and friends so dear.
At nursery, we laugh and play,
In autumn's golden, gentle sway.
